

Massive Changes:

One key difference between our original design and our current design is the lack of images. Because the output that wikipedia gives for its images is not a url for the image, we are unable to retrieve those images. The recipes returned by yummly is also pretty brief, so we could only include information about the required ingredients and cooking time.

Minor Changes:

While we were able to implement a login system, we did not have time to save searches. Fortunately, we stated that this was going to be an optional feature.